

2010 Census: Here are the questions

From The Enquirer

The U.S. Census Bureau touts a new, 10-question form that officials say should take the average household 10 minutes to complete. But the 10 questions are just for the first person, with seven more questions for each additional person. Up to 12 people can be included on one form.

The instructions require respondents to count all people, including babies, who live and sleep in the household most of the time. Respondents should not count people living away at college, in the armed forces, in jail or prison, or in a nursing home. But respondents should include anyone without another permanent place to stay.

4. What is your telephone number?
